DESCRIPTION

Wave Rider Claymen by Aman Khanna.

Aman Khanna's Claymen are unique ceramic sculptures that form part of his Claymen series: a continuing exploration of the nature of identity, selfhood and what it means to be human in the world.

Each Claymen is hand sculpted from clay. Khanna creates a unique expression for each one with a deft and minimal hand, using a simple series of universal features to create a profound sense of character which is immediately appealing.

Whether used as a single decorative ornament or arranged in a crowd, Claymen have a compelling presence that encourages thoughtful consideration.

As Khanna observes, "Let the Claymen look at you, and use them to look at yourself."

DIMENSIONS

17w x 9cmh Approx.

MATERIALS

Unglazed stoneware

The use of unadorned clay bears particular significance for the artist. Khanna notes that "clay is a simple, everyday raw material used by everyone. Sun-dried, half-baked in an open fire - clay is omnipresent and yet individual in the way one uses it."
