The Tribeca series is a range of lighting inspired by the New York City glamour of the late 1930s. Danish designer Søren Rose travelled across America, searching for and collecting vintage lamps. An inspiring process, Søren Rose deconstructed the old lamps, separating their parts, and later reassembling them. This experimentation resulted in bold designs capturing contemporary elegance and glamour.

One of the first designs in the Tribeca range, the Franklin is a striking chandelier to feature in the dining room, and also works beautifully in other living and commercial spaces - such as bars and restaurants.

The Franklin fits four different light bulbs and the light bulb type can be changed according to one's preference - making it even more characterful.
