

Booth and Ledeboer cabinet, 1951

£1,850

DESCRIPTION

Cabinet by David Booth and Judith Ledeboer for Gordon Russell Ltd

The cabinet by David Booth and Judith Ledeboer captures simple British modernism with a subtle decorative quality. The high-quality construction by Gordon Russell Ltd. employs exotic hardwoods including mahogany and veneers in Bombay rosewood.

This design was displayed at the Festival of Britain in the 'Home and Gardens' building. It proved to be an iconic reference for the period, a later version by the designers appearing as a motif on the Homemaker range of plates and dinnerware.

The Booth & Ledeboer design is in the V&A permanent collection.

The example offered is an early production bearing the Utility Mark on the reverse.

DIMENSIONS

121w x 46d x 84cmh

MATERIALS

The rosewood veneer is cut to reveal the white birch beneath in an evocative double helix pattern reflecting topical interest with scientific and atomic structures.

HELP / ADVICE

Call: 0207 837 1900

Email: showroom@twentytwentyone.com