DESCRIPTION

3 Fauteuil Grand Confort two-seat sofa by Le Corbusier, Jeanneret, Perriand for Cassina.

Designed by Le Corbusier in 1928, the 3 Fauteuil Grand Confort sofa is a timeless icon that pioneered modernist values of using structural form as decoration. An innovative example of the refined functional aesthetic that was embraced by designers in post-war Europe.

Similar to his architecture, Le Corbusier creates a simple linear form. The separation of the metal frame and the cushions expresses a rationalist approach to industrial production. The clean lines of the steel tubing are contrasted by high-quality padded cushions to provide the utmost comfort.

Original pieces can still be found in his buildings such as the Cité Internationale Universitaire in Paris. Cassina has revived this classic in the highest quality to offer elegance, comfort and a sense of design history to your home.

Please note; the pricing example is for feather-padded cushions, please enquire about polyester padded version. The sofa was previously called the LC3 sofa.
