The refined forms of the Daiza planters take inspiration from the pointed bases of archaic amphorae. Traditionally designed in this manner for storage in soft ground, the vessels have been reimagined by Audo Copenhagen to sit within a minimalist iron stand, showing us what is 'above ground' and what is 'buried'.

Meticulously crafted by hand from stoneware, the planter's austere silhouette and colour palette is enriched by a glossy, reactive glaze.

Available in four different height and size combinations, the Daiza planters can be grouped in clusters. Although designed for indoor use, the pots can be used outside if following the instructions on the care and maintenance guide (located under PDF downloads).
