DESCRIPTION

Taraxacum Cocoon Pendant by A Castiglioni & P G Castiglioni for Flos.

Taking its inspiration from the dandelion plant, the Taraxacum pendant, designed in 1960, is characterised by its unique form, captured within a cocoon-like material. The sculptural light emits a soft and enchanting glow, introducing an ethereal ambience wherever it is positioned.

The inner steel framework of the lamp is carefully enveloped in a white powder coating and treated with a distinctive resin, resulting in a diffuser shielded by a transparent surface.
