Designed in 2024, Makuri is a lightweight easy chair meticulously crafted from high-quality materials. It features distinctive curves in both the seat and the back, creating a welcoming gesture and offering clarity in construction. Makuri's design naturally evolved to utilise plywood, demanding careful and precise craftsmanship to ensure its strength and prevent warping.

When Michael Anastassiades set out to design Makuri, he aimed to create an oversized piece that would command its space within the home. He carefully considered how the chair would integrate into Koyori's existing collection, considering its scale, function, and role within the household.
